

For my traditional design, I decided to create a jacket that celebrates the Olympics. The aesthetics of this jacket are supposed to celebrate the “heritage” and “diversity” themes of the 2054 Summer olympics with traditional Turkish/Arabic patterns. What makes these jackets special is that the zipper charms are swappable. Instead of pins being exchanged at this Olympics, country-related charms will be exchanged. These charms can be used as zippers for the jacket, can be attached to jewelry, or used as keychains. The many different uses of these charms is meant to encourage the frequent exchange of them so that Olympians can collect and use as many as they can. In the mock-up, some designs may take motifs from the country flag, for example, the Argentinian charm is the Sun of May, a symbol found in the Argentinian flag. Some charms may celebrate other aspects of a country, for example, the American charm celebrates the bald eagle, and is shaped like a gold medal, and mentions the year of the olympics.
